ABOUT “Nelson Illusions”

Bound Brook New Jersey's Brook Arts Center pulls a special holiday surprise out of its sleeve December 29th and 30th when it brings “Nelson Illusions” <http://www.nelsonillusions.com/> to its stage. The internationally known magical theater company runs the largest touring illusion show in North America. The Nelsons have seen in 32 countries and have performed in Las Vegas and Atlantic City, as well as on cruise ships, in arenas and in theatres throughout the United States and Canada. This December they will be presenting a whole sleigh load of jaw dropping illusions and award winning acts in a magic extravaganza designed to amaze and delight audiences of all ages. The holiday event includes comedy and audience participation along with stunning effects like floating ladies, a girl absorbed into a sheet of solid steel, a man who crawls through a rotating fan and an impossible feat with a giant industrial drill.

ABOUT THE BROOK ARTS CENTER

Following a grand opening in September 2009, the Brook has hosted entertainment, educational, and fundraising events, including summer camp and a performance by Kelsea's Performing Arts Center, a talent show representing several churches in Bound Brook, the Somerset Valley Orchestra and Raritan Valley Chorale, the Pine Barons, Operation Adelmo, a tribute to the 9/11 responders, and silent movies. Theater restoration continues with the recent installation of the marquee and targeted improvements to the acoustics within the theater. For more information visit <http://www.brookarts.org/>.
